THE ORNAMENT CREATION PROCESS

Millions of Americans have discovered something extraordinary in CHRISTOPHER RADKO® ornaments. Their radiance and originality makes them more a work of art than an ordinary holiday decoration.

Each design is crafted by hand using techniques dating back more than a century and requiring seven days to complete. Cottage workshops in five countries – Poland, Italy, Germany, Czech Republic and Romania – produce the ornaments, finials and garlands that comprise the CHRISTOPHER RADKO collection. More than 3,000 craftspeople skilled in glassblowing, carving, mold making and precise hand painting contribute their talents to each and every CHRISTOPHER RADKO design.

At the start of each design, a CHRISTOPHER RADKO artist conceives a design that is submitted to a carver who works from clay or plaster. The carver then gives the approved sculpt to a mold maker. Using a Renaissance-era technique, a sand-cast mold is created from molten metal. This becomes the mother mold, and the ornament making process can begin.

Day 1
On the first day of production, the glassblower creates the ornament using clear tempered glass, used by CHRISTOPHER RADKO® for its strength.

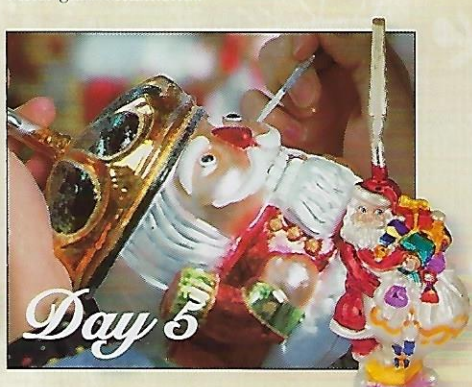

Day 2
On the second day of production, the ornament is injected with liquid sterling, another process done by hand. The silvering gives the ornaments their luminescence and sets them apart from all other glass ornaments.

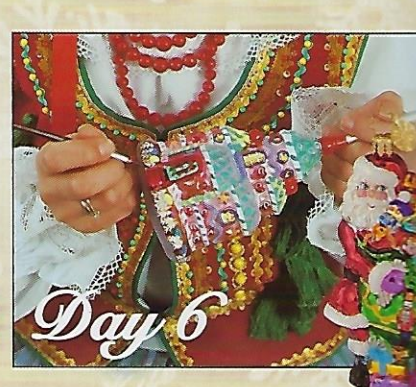

Day 3
On the third day of production, the base coat of matte lacquer is hand applied: the "white" on a snowman, for instance, or the "red" on a Santa.

Day 4
On the fourth day of production, a second application of lacquer is added to the ornaments along with additional vivid colors.

Day 5
On the fifth day of production, fine details are hand painted, like the eyes on Santa and the patterns on gift wrapped presents.

Day 6
On the sixth day of production, a dusting of glitter is applied to give extra sparkle!

On the seventh and final day of production, the finishing touches are completed. The custom "R" charm, the star-shaped ornament hanger and the official Radko crown, reading "R-A-D-K-O," are added to the ornament. All three final touches ensure that each ornament created has the official markings of an authentic Christopher Radko creation. The ornaments are then individually tagged and carefully packed for import to the United States.
